MORGAN EXHIBITS MAY BE INCREASED

Museum Officials Hope to Get
Financier's Consent to Show
$60,000,000 Collection,
Now in Storage.

RARE TAPESTRIES IN LOT

Ivories, Enamels, Miniatures,
Sculptures and Bronzes Also Included—New Wing
Will Be Ready in Time.

When J. Pierpont Morgan returns from his trip abroad the officials of the Metropolitan Museum of Art will take up with the financier the matter of exhibiting next fall a large part of his art collection still in storage at the museum, the total valuation of which has been placed at $60,000,000. That part of the collection not yet seen by the public includes the great Hoentschel collection of ivories and enamels, as well as tapestries of great rarity, miniatures, sculptures and bronze and silver collections.

Owing to Mr. Morgan's absence no plans have yet been made for the display of any more of the collection. His paintings are still on view in the special exhibition gallery and are to remain there for an indefinite length of time.

Addition H, the new wing to the north of the main building, will be ready for occupancy early in the summer. As it was announced last February by museum officers that with Mr. Morgan's consent galleries in this new structure would offer temporary quarters for as much of the collection as it could accommodate, and as there has been no definite announcement since then to the contrary, it is here that the new exhibit will probably be placed.

Smaller than "Morgan Wing."

This addition was planned for other things. It is only half the size of the main building, to be called Addition J-K, or the "Morgan wing," which has been planned to hold the entire Morgan collection. Addition H has been under construction for more than two years. Park Department officials say it will be impossible to get the Morgan wing finished inside of three years even if the plans are acted on at once by the Board of Estimate budget committee.

Although museum officials have given no indication of the full extent of the Morgan collection not yet seen, it includes among other things a set of Gothic tapestries valued at $500,000. There are two busts by Houdon, "The Given Kiss" and "The Bought Kiss," appraised at $100,000; the Pfungst collection of bronzes valued at $200,000, and the Gutmann collection of sixteenth and seventeenth century goldsmiths' and silversmiths' work, said to be worth $300,000. It also comprises Lord Coventry's set of three Rose du Bay Sevres vases, appraised at $75,000.

The rock crystals and wood carvings in Mr. Morgan's collection are declared to be the finest known. There is also a golden chain which belonged to King Christian II and a rock crystal bowl that belonged to Queen Christina of Sweden (1629-'89).

The collection of enamels includes those which were on exhibition in the South Kensington Museum and the Hoentschel collection, obtained in Paris. Jacques Seligmann went to London with Mr. Morgan to supervise the packing of this part of the collection.

There is also a collection of miniatures, said to be one of the finest in the world, including examples of work from the sixteenth to the nineteenth century. The most valuable miniature in the collection, according to C. C. Cooley, is a portrait of Queen Christina of Sweden.

EX-BARTENDER HONOR MAN

Princeton Freshman, Carrying Chicago Scholarship, on Roll.

Princeton, N. J., March 9.—Among the names on the honor roll of Princeton University for the term which has just ended is that of John Larson, of Chicago, who is listed as a freshman.

Larson came to Princeton from Chicago, where he had been employed as a bartender. He was found, while working at that trade, by the Princeton Alumni Association of Chicago, and was selected as the most promising man to carry their scholarship for the next four years.

His first honors at Princeton came on the football field last season.

WHAT THE BIG WAR TAX MEANS TO GERMANY

Bertha Krupp von Bohlen, for instance, will have to pay $1,800,000.

(By Cable to The Tribune.)

Berlin, March 9.—Dispatches from Berlin give details of the German Emperor's proposals to tax private fortunes for the provision of a great fund to be used for the increase of German armaments. The salient figures of the semi-official statement issued on the subject are as follows:

Fortunes up to $50,000, $1.25 in every $500.

Fortunes of $50,000 to $125,000, $1.60 in every $500.

Fortunes of $125,000 to $250,000 $2.50 in every $500.

Fortunes of $250,000 to $2,500,000, $5 in every $500.

Fortunes of $2,500,000 to $5,000,000, $7.50 in every $500.

Fortunes of $5,000,000 to $12,500,000, $10 in every $500.

Fortunes of $12,500,000 to $20,000,000, $12.50 in every $500.

Fortunes of $20,000,000 to $25,000,000, $15 in every $500.

Fortunes of more than $25,000,000, $20 in every $500.

To take a concrete example, Bertha Krupp von Bohlen, head of the great Krupp works, will have to pay $1,800,000 as her share of the war tax. When it is remembered that this is not a tax on income, but on capital, and that it strikes every bank account of more than $5,000 in the German Empire, it is not hard to see what a vital blow has been struck at German trade expansion. And all Europe will be dragged down with Germany. Every country of Europe will be forced to follow the example of Germany in armament expansion, with a consequent increase of the burden of taxation. The withdrawal of so large an amount of capital from commercial paths means a corresponding restriction of trade activity and of the power of trade to expand.

Herein lies the opportunity of America, which is outside the field of European political intrigue, to seize and retain the commercial supremacy of the world.

BURGLARS DODGE BULLETS

Loot Home of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett.

Seven Persian rugs and several oil paintings, valued at $3,600, which were cut out of their frames, were stolen early yesterday morning from the home of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, the author at Plumpton, Nassau County. Mrs. Burnett is in Bermuda, where she is spending her winter vacation.

Mrs. Elizabeth Johnstone, mother of Gilbert Johnstone, who lives with a few doors of the home of Mrs. Burnett, happened to look in that direction yesterday morning. She saw the blaze of a match as it was struck on the first door of Mrs. Burnett's home. Knowing that Mrs. Burnett was not home, she called to her son.

Mr. Johnstone rushed over to the Burnett home, calling to several of his hounds. They ran to the cellar grating, which had been pried open, and stood over it barking. As two men looked away from the window, Mr. Johnstone sent several shots in their direction. The men darted away from the window and then hurried out of the house and into a wagon which was standing near by.

The shots and barking of the dogs attracted the attention of Mrs. Burnett's nephew, Archie Fahnestock, who lives near by. He and Johnstone again opened fire on the intruders, but in the semidarkness the men made good their escape.

At the operation, besides the two government physicians, Dr. J. F. Anderson and Passed Assistant Surgeon A. M. Stimson, there were in attendance about thirty physicians and surgeons, a number of whom were interns and members of the medical board connected with the hospital.

Among the physicians present were Howard Lillenthal, second vice-president of the County Medical Society, and a member of the Academy of Medicine.

Mrs. N. Brill, Alfred Meyer, Emmanuel Lidman, Henry Berg, F. S. Mandelbaum and L. Buerger.

Dr. George Mannheimer, at whose office the second demonstration of the Friedmann treatment was made on Saturday, was also present. Dr. Mannheimer is a member of the hospital's visiting staff. Dr. Abram Jacobi, pretty generally regarded as the dean of the medical profession in this city, and the president of the medical board of Mount Sinai, was not present.

Dr. Jacobi said last night that he did not regard the occasion as one requiring his presence.

Suspense Caused Rumors.

The actual work of treating the seven patients required but a few moments.

Dr. Friedmann spent an hour and a half examining the charts containing a history of the patients, the long time giving rise to a rumor that he had refused to treat them as, it was charged, he did at the People's Hospital the day of his first demonstration.

Dr. Goldwater, the superintendent of the hospital, spoke favorably of Dr. Friedmann's conduct in the operating room. There was no criticism of his technique nor as to the use of proper instruments. Dr. Goldwater thought the opportunities afforded by the institution precluded the possibility of such objections.

Only a scant description of the patients was given by the hospital. The seven cases, it was said, consisted of one tuberculosis of the knee, one tuberculosis of the ribs, one of the urethra, one tuberculosis of the elbow, one tuberculosis of the kidney and one suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis.

The names of the patients will not be made public, it was said, unless by the government physicians in their official report.

The patients are considered now entirely in charge of the United States government, represented by Dr. Stimson, who will remain in the city to make observations.

Of the three pulmonary cases treated, all were moderately advanced and are ward patients.

No other cases of pulmonary tuberculosis will be treated by Dr. Friedmann in the government test, but it was thought that other cases involving the hip and knee joints and similar cases would be turned over to Dr. Friedmann on his return from Montevideo.

On Tuesday by the crew of the Cobh's Island and Lifesaving Station. Captain Merritt had been tossed about in the sea for more than forty-eight hours.

The news of the rescue reached the mainland to-day.

The schooner struck a sunken barje last Sunday. A hole was torn in her hull and she became waterlogged.

Samuel Holden, the negro, and the captain lashed themselves to the mast.

Holden died on Monday of exposure.

SURVIVES SEA TRAGEDY

Captain Lashed to Mast with Dead Sailor Is Rescued.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.)

Berlin, Md., March 9.—Lashed to one side of a mast of his waterlogged schooner, Little May, to the other side of which was tied the body of a negro, Captain Dennard Merritt, unconscious and nearly frozen, was picked up about ten miles out from Cobb's Island.

FRIEDMANN TREATS 7 FOR U.S. DOCTORS

Unheralded Sunday Clinic Held in Mount Sinai Hospital After Hurried Preparations.

PATIENTS' NAMES SECRET

They Are in Sole Charge of Federal Health Officials, Who Will Make Their Cases Subject of Thorough Test.

The first test under United States Public Health Service jurisdiction of the turtle bacillus which Dr. Friedmann holds out as a hope for consumption occurred yesterday.

Mount Sinai Hospital, Fifth avenue and 100th street, was the scene of the clinic. Seven patients received hypodermic injections of the Friedmann bacillus.

According to a statement made by Dr. Sigmund S. Goldwater, superintendent of Mount Sinai Hospital, its clinical facilities were turned over to Dr. John F. Anderson, director of the hygiene laboratory of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, at Washington, and his assistant, Dr. Arthur M. Stimson, a surgeon in the government service, who conducted the test.
